WELCOME

Welcome to [REDACTED]. We are excited to be working with you. If you have questions you can call us on [REDACTED] or email [REDACTED].

1. We want you to understand us

We want to talk with you in a way you understand.

We can organise interpreters and advocates. They can help if you cannot understand us, or we cannot understand you.

2. How we work with you

We ask you questions so we can help you. Some questions are in the Client Intake Form.

If we think we can help, we meet with you. We may talk about a Services Agreement.

If we can help, we sign a Services Agreement. If you are happy, you sign it too. Then we have an agreement.

Next we do an assessment with you. You are part of this. You can bring an advocate, your family, and anyone you want.

Then we write a Client Support Plan. You sign it to show you agree. We review your plan often.

3. Your rights

You have the right to:

- be treated with respect and dignity

- be safe and free from abuse, neglect and being treated unfairly
- make your own choices and decisions
- learn, grow and take part in your community
- have relationships and privacy
- get information and help to understand your rights
- keep your personal information private
- speak up and make a complaint

4. Your choices

You make the decisions about your services and supports.

We give you enough time to make decisions.

We help you make good choices. But the choices are yours.

5. Conflicts of interest

Sometimes we do support coordination and other supports for you. This can be a conflict of interest.

We will always tell you about other providers. We try to give you 3 quotes from other providers, as well as our own.

You choose  or another provider. Choosing another provider will not change your other services.

6. Choosing your staff

We try to match the right staff member to you. We think about personality, language, culture and skills.

7. Our staff

Our staff are trained and experienced. They have done NDIS training and COVID-19 training. They wear a name badge with their photo.

8. Privacy

We respect your privacy. We use your information to do our work and follow privacy laws. You tell us your choices on a Privacy Consent Form.

9. Feedback and complaints

Tell us if something is not right. You can talk to any staff member. You can call [REDACTED] or email [REDACTED]. You can make a complaint without saying your name.

You can also call the NDIS Commission on 1800 035 544.

10. Leaving our service

You can leave our services at any time. We will help you find other services if you want.
